This family calendar has been working well.

It’s great! Even with everyone’s crazy schedules, we can arrange for someone to be home to help with your mom’s meals.

But what will we do when Angie starts her part-time job? And don’t you want to visit your cousin soon?

Sigh... I don’t know...

I wonder if we could get some help? Maybe hire someone?

Isn’t that expensive?

You mean a home health aide?

Let’s call the CaringKind Helpline.

We need to figure out our options.

Maybe Estella’s eligible for financial assistance?

Let’s call the CaringKind Helpline.

After calling the CaringKind Helpline, Robert and Tina sign up for a legal and financial planning seminar.

Today we’ll talk about power of attorney, health care proxies, long-term care insurance...

...joint bank accounts, guardianship, and Medicaid eligibility.

But every situation is unique. Be sure to discuss your needs with an attorney.

Mom, this is Ana. She’ll be helping you make lunch when I’m not here.

Let’s have chicken soup for lunch.

Hi Estella! Nice to meet you!

MOM, THIS IS ANNA. SHE’LL BE HELPING YOU MAKE LUNCH WHEN I’M NOT HERE.

Thank goodness, we have extra help now!

Ok, and maybe some crackers, too.

To be continued...

At CaringKind’s Legal & Financial Seminars, elder law attorneys discuss the legal and financial issues associated with planning and long-term care. For more information, call the 24-hour CaringKind Helpline at 646-744-2900 or go to www.caringkindnyc.org/legalfinancial.
